Reading more and more about science and human behavior I understood how important is to adjust yourself to every situation. Life is much easier that way.

Working away from home, on a cruise ships with 60+ nationality onboard helped me to achieve that. Seeing so many different cultures working in the same environment was a great experience.

SUMMARY

I wanted to travel the world but after seeing small piece of it I got introduced to coding . For two years now it is my hobby and I have been a part of various web development projects. I think it is time to become my profession and even my way of life. I think I have analytical and problem-solving skills as well as team working abilities I think they are some of my most valued competencies.
